It seems from what we can gath from the press, the good people the country are claiming the ddles. That they are demandsaddles. That they are demanding an obliteration of trickery methods, gambling and immorality. A strict observance of Sunday laws, and that when saloonsare licensed that they be forced to run strictly in accord with the laws governing them. An other demand worth while is that no man addicted to drink or whose habits would preclude giving his full time and powers to the duties of the and powers to the duties of the office he would desire to fill, be named as its representative. He must be clear-headed, industrious must be clear-headed, industrious and in full possession of his faculties, This looks like a return to good old times of bygone days, and we hope and shall labor for the local ticket put to itself on record and be in perfect accord with the coming sentiment, beginning at Chicago taking in St. Louis, Philadelphia, New York and other cities. thing Is Sleepy and Rest St. Pierre on the Island of St. Vincent.

The social life of St. Pierre is genial and serene. Hospitality is a virtue; the stranger is made at home, writes P. T. McGrath, in Booklovers Magazine. In summer, when the French and British warships, that keep the peace among their fisherfelk, visit the protection of the most parties are held, usually on Sunday evenings, and racing and firing matches organized. The cares must, however, close at ten each night, when a gendarme drummer parades the town, beating "lights out." In the forenon this functionary, by blast of bugle, summons the curious to the public square, to proclaim orders, sales and obituaries. Funerals are conducted most elaborately on the continental plan, and often cost large sums. Weddings, too, involve dots and contract as in the motherland. Waterpipes running from reservoirs in the hills, and electric lights replacing the quaint oil lamps, whose ornamental iron brackets still adorn the street corners, are the sole evidence of modern progress. There are no trams, street cars, telephones, newspapers, theaters, laundries or other accessories of advanced existence. Everything is sleepy, restful, and old fashioned. Save for the Atlantic cable, which touches there, it is as isolated from the world as Greenland. Goats browse on the rocky inclines, and goat's milk is served at table. The cuisine is essentially French, theyotan-feu and Breton dishes being much in evidence. Whese are drunk by all, and even the fishermen are allowed by law a glass of brandy at each meal on board ship. Women wash all the follothing in the streams that cascade down the fills index, and bleach it on the mossy uptr., The men being away fishing, most of the work falls on the work and they gather fagots of wood from the wreckage that drifts in, or crew the fire engine on occasion, or crew the fire engine on occasion.

Has the "public" rights that we are bound to respect? That question is answered when we stop to think that the public is only a general name for the people about us. Is there any good reason why we should be more careless with the book which belongs to the community than if it were one own prints than if it were one own prints. book which belongs to the commu-nity than if it were our own pri-vate property? Is there any more excuse for our interfering with the comfort of a hundred people than-for inconveniencing a smaller num-ber? Several plots to assassinate the Minister have been discovered during the last two years, which period ass been marked by strong political rivalry between the Minister of the Interior and former Minister of Finance, M. Witte.

WILD SCENES E

The horses dashed wildly away with the front wheels of the carriage, the only portion of the vehicle remaining intact.

Immediately there ensued a scene of the wildest confusion.

The roadway was strewn with the wreckage of the carriage and pieces of the red lining of the Minister's official overcoat. A few yards from M. Von Plehve's body lay the shapeless heap of the coachman's

ASSASSIN'S CAREFUL PL

M. Von Pichve was always apprehensive of attempts upon his life and used to drive as rapidly as posible. The coachman, however, was compelled to go slow at this point on account of crowded traffic. The assassin in laying his plans evidently foresaw this circumstance and, while the Minister's coachman slowed down, threw the bomb. Look After Your Seed Corn.

The matter of seed corn is seemingly somewhat out of question.
But, like tobacco, seed corn is a twelve months' crop. Therefore, all seasons are suitable for seed corn talk; especially to those who take some pains to improve their corn. The corn crop as it now stands in the field, is far enough along in growth to enable one to pass judgment on the individual plants.

Improvement in plants of all pass judgment on the best plants of all kinds is brought about by the selection of the best plants for "mother plants," also by roqueing or cuiling out the worst or the most undesirable plants. The seed corn patch, or that part of the seed corn patch, or that part of the corn field which has been set apart to grow the seed corn for the next year, should now be gone over and all undesirable plants chopped out. There are the weakly, spindling plants, which, if they ever do bear an ear, will be pulled down by its weight. Out with them. Then, there are the undersized bear an ear, will be pulled down by its weight. Out with them. Then, there are the undersized plants. They should be cut down as should also those with short leaves and with narrow, ribbon like leaves and with narrow, ribbon like leaves: A broad, long leaf is a good indication of constitution and thrift. Plants respond to those little extra attentions quite as much as animals do. This thorough care is a necessary part of thorough brevia a necessary part of thorough breviances.—From Inland Farmer.

Good Spirits and Good Order a Noticeable Thing in the Mithado's Troops.

The departure of the soldiers from a district such as Tokio presents many points of interest. The youth of the men is a little remarkable, the good spirits and the order highly so. Every large Japananese house in one's neighborhood has soldiers billeted in it—in the capacious suite of houses belonging to the Tokunaga family as many as 500 soldiers are said to be lodged, says a Tokio correspondence of the London Times. Yet, except for the matter of seeing the soldiers about the gates and doors, the neighborhood shows no difference either in sight or sound. When a body of men is marched to the statem for entrainment there are observers on the roadside showing an interest in the progress, but no friends mix themselves up with the troops, or in any way help to throw then into confusion. One hears strange stories of the calm resolution with which each individual looks forward to death as a certain result, of their campaign; even of mothers telling their sons that they have no wish to see them again, the widow rarely, so the divorced month of the continual evidence seem to our western ideas inconsistent with such stoticism, yet stoticism was characteristic of old Japan, and has its counterpart in the new. One hears further of men divoring their wires out of pure philamthropy. The divorced woman somewhat readily marries again, the widow rarely, so the divorced goes back to her parents and waits her time, while the soldier with the soldier of the same qualities on land. What is even more to the point here, there will not a the same qualities on land. Golf Increases Price of Gutta Percha.
Until about ten years ago the submarine cable companies used practically the whole world's supply of gutta percha, for the reason that, unlike rubber, it is not affected by salt water. But when the game of golf became the fad in Europe, England and the United States it was found that gutta percha is the only astisfactory material out of which to make the balls, and the demand for it increased to so great an extent that the production nearly doubled.

that the production nearly dou-bled. The ships from Singapore, Straits Settlements, now bring enormous cargoes of it, and al-though twice as much is imported by England as was imported the years ago, the price has advanced about 100 per cent. This, the sable companies say, is due solely to the manufacture of golf balls.—Philadelphia Record.

Uses of Carbolic Acid.

The success of the Germans in developing commercial uses for liquefied carbonic acid has justled to an attempt in France to increase the customs duties on this substance. The Germans were the first to discover its commercial importance, and they found its antiseptic properties valuable for the treatment of beer. Everybody knows how it is employed in soda water, sparkling wines and Selters or Seltsee water. It is also used for making artificial icej, thas been employed in fare-extinguishers, and more recently a new use has been discovered for it in destroying vermin in ships and cellars.—Youth's Companion.

supports for its acrual rootlets. This plant has compound leaves with three leaflets, a fact which enables us to distinguish it at once from the Virginia creeper, which has five leaflets, and from the bittersweet, which has from seven to nine.

NOTE CAUSED SETTLEMENT

The Japanese can win distinction at the desk of the counting house as readily as in the seafight, says the Westminster Ga agat, says the Westminster Gazette. One who obtained a situation with an English firm on trial was asked a few days after his appointment by the cashier to write to a enatomer who had owed some money to the house for a long time and who seemed to have no intention of paying. "Write briefly and politely," said the cashier, "but let him understfind distinctly that we expect him to pay the money with out further delay." The letter was written, and on the following day came a check for the amount due. The surprised cushier asked the new clerk to show him a copy of the letter which had been so effectual. It ran thus:

the letter which had been so effectual. It ran thus:
"Dear Sir: If you do not send us at once the money you owe us we shall be obliged to take steps which will cause you the utmost astonishment. Respectfully yours."

The form seems to combine oriental subtlety and western point.

HAVE YOUR OWN THINK.

The Earth May Be Flat or It May B Round, Take Your Choice.

There is no earthly reason why you should not persist in believing that the earth is flat and not round at all. You will have plenty of company in your "couries tion," and there are millions who are still more heterodox in their beliefs, says Stray Stories.

The eleverest men in Arabia are absolutely convinced that the earth is egg-shaped and floats half-submerged in the sea; the Hindu Vedas says that it is as flat as a plate, and supported on a number of high pillars; some South American tribes believe that it is an island afloat in an interminable sea; and millions of people in India couldn't be persuaded that it is not of the shape of an enormous inverted bowl or dish cover, supported by four elephants which have an insecure footing on the back of a brobding agian tortoise.

You mean't mind if you can't convince the misguided millions who persist in pinning their faith to a spherical earth.
